
CONGRESS GIVES WILSON GOLD RECEPTION

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.
Washington, Dec. 2.—No faithful chronicler of current events could fail to record a chill and unattractive air of greeting to the President of the United States at the Capitol.

It is doubtful if any President ever received a less cordial reception in the House. In certain that Woodrow Wilson never did.

Before the usual packed House and swarming galleries and corridors, the President appeared, at the start of his career, crowded with the crowded lobbies of the greatest war in all history, to say goodbye for a brief season before departing on the country's chief delegate to the greatest peace conference ever assembled in the history of the world.

All nations, including the enemy nations, had agreed to make peace upon terms distinctly and definitely laid down by the American President, and European statesmen had urged the attendance as "indispensable to the just conclusion of a world peace."

ASSEMBLY UNRESPONSIVE.
It would seem an impartial historian will surely say that, under these circumstances our nation's executive should have been received with a warmth and fervor and understanding of welcome never before accorded to a mortal man.

Instead, Woodrow Wilson spoke his valiantly to a comparatively chilly and unresponsive assembly, and seemed upon his military mission across the sea upon an arctic wave of opposition that approached hostility. A measured majority of Democratic members of House and Senate applauded him. Stung by Republican apathy this majority broke Row and then into silence.

Let us consider the partisan Republican claim that the President deserved it. Let us recall the Republican resentment over the President's pre-election letter, which Republicanism construed into a reflection upon that organization. Let us recognize the discontent of a Senate outside of party limits with the failure to pass the League of Nations bill.

Let us recall the President's constitutional authority to receive and appoint and dismiss ambassadors.

But with all this it is believed by balanced and thoughtful men in all parties that President Wilson will record it as one of the most remarkable and least creditable things in representative annals that a great executive whose terms of dealing the war, whose sustained success in maintaining the ideal of peace and whose marvellously successful conduct of the war had placed our country upon the highest and most useful plane of moral greatness, ever attained by any nation, should come in its crowning and illustrious hour to face the chosen representatives of the nation he had led to meet freedom and silence and chill and disapproval from the very men who had chosen another and a safer hour to vent their resentment and administer their rebuke.

The President was going. His ship was all ready to sail. It was no longer a matter of discussion. And to send him away like this, his last hour in Congress, Europe filled with the telegraphic reports of his chilling behavior, his countrymen, made a spectacle upon which history must pass judgment in a more tranquil day than this.

How Would You Like to Be?

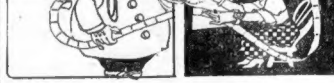

By MORTON BIRGE

7-The Elevated Ticket Girl

How could she ask more pleasing work—to speak the simple truth—Than selling strips of tickets in an Elevated booth?

A job to send her home at night with rosy, smiling face And agonized affection for the whole, damned human race.

Of course the public doesn't kick about the rising fare. Of course nobody tries to stop and argue then and there. Of course no patron ever scowls. Instead, they smile with bliss And hand their money over with a pleasant: "Thank you, Miss."

Imagine all the fancy brands that people call a phis Which butt up to the window with exasperating phis. With questions which would take a girl a week to puzzle out. While words of wild commuters wonder what it's all about.

How jolly to tear tickets off in never-ending phis. Just think of the excitement—to say nothing of the "phis." It ought to be good practice for the well known "disposal."

And given up a person just as blithe as one would wish.

WHITON CLAIMS CALL FOR FACTS RE-ELECTION ON ALL ARMY PROMOTIONS IN QUINCY

Quincy voted in city election today with every expectation of walking right up to the national "home dry" mark with a quarter-century temperance record. The city of granite has voted "dry" on the license question for twenty-three consecutive years.

The majority contest brought out a lively vote. Supporters of Mayor Joseph L. Whiton declared at noon that he was as good as re-elected by 500 votes over former Mayor Gustave B. Hutton.

Whiton wrestled the majority from Hutton two years ago. This year Hutton tried to get the office back again. The campaign has been bitter.

Twelve candidates for five places in the City Council added interest to the election.

Every store sells two things—merchandise and service

This is true whether you know it or not

THE price you pay for your goods includes not only the wholesale cost of those goods but a share of the salary of the salesperson who waits on you, of the buyer who buys the merchandise, of the store's rent, light, heat, and all other expenses, as well as a profit for the firm.

During recent years there has grown up among the larger stores a spirit of competition in service almost equal to their competition in merchandise. The customer has paid for this competition.

Some of these services are very much worth while. Perhaps all of them are. But we think you will agree with us that it is time the customer was allowed to decide this point for himself.

In making our new rules charging for delivery of goods and for the use of a charge account we are taking a long step forward in this direction. We are taking off the cost of merchandise the cost of these two principal store services and setting it apart. Now customers who want these services can pay for them. Others will not be obliged to do so.

The principle is correct. The practice remains to be perfected. In putting the principle into practice we have adopted the best methods we can see at present. In this store today, there are merchandise values that would not have been possible under our old policy. Those who buy these specific items will be sure to appreciate them. With your co-operation we hope to spread these values so that eventually every customer who enters this store will get in every purchase better values as a direct result of our new policy.

EIGHT LOST AS CUNARDER HITS TANKER

Queenstown, Dec. 2.—The first saloon of the Cunard liner Orinda, which collided with the British tanker Keweenaw off Galley Head, Ireland, in a heavy fog, was reported today. None was injured.

The Keweenaw, which was towed by tug for several hours, finally sank. An American destroyer assisted in the rescue of the tanker's crew.

According to an officer of the Keweenaw, one stowaway and seven members of the crew of the tanker were killed by the collision, and one injured. The crew contained eight Irish men and one American. The Orinda, which was hit by the Keweenaw's bow, was immediately tilted and the engine room burst into flames, scalding several firemen.

The passengers of the Orinda were badly frightened and for a time feared the tanker was responsible for the accident.

DEER ISLAND SAILORS TO HOLD VICTORY BALL

A Victory Ball will be held December 3 at the Convention Hall, 201 Boston street, by the officers and men at the Naval Training Camp at Deer Island.

Governor Mitchell, Major Peters, the wife and family of the men now at Deer Island, and relatives and friends of the men are expected to be present.

A military band will furnish music for the occasion. Arrangements are being made to entertain about 800.

WIFE OF AMERICAN REPORTER IS DEAD

Annie Lewis Sargent, wife of George Raymond Sargent, water-front reporter for the Boston AMERICAN for many years, is dead. She died at the St. Louis Hospital early Monday morning, where she had been operated upon following an illness of some time past.

Heart failure induced by the shock of the operation brought death after she had apparently rallied.

Mrs. Sargent was born in Newburyport fifty years ago, the daughter of Captain A. Parke Lewis, a well-known citizen of that city.

Funeral services will be held at her late home, Greenwood street, Malden Highlands, at 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon. Burial will be at Oak Hill cemetery, Newburyport.

Her husband, Mrs. Sargent is survived by her mother, four sisters and three brothers.

EXTRA HOUR PROTESTED BY BROOKLINE PUPILS

Pupils are being circulated in Brookline protesting against the action of the School Committee in extending the school period one hour each day in an effort to make up for time lost during the influenza epidemic.

A number of High School pupils walked out of the building shortly before the beginning of the last period.

The morning session at the High School has been from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., and the afternoon session from 12 to 2:30 p. m. The afternoon session now ends at 2:30.

DANCE TO GET FUNDS FOR 101ST WELCOME

Arrangements are being made for a dancing party to be held in the Municipal Building, 221 Broadway, South Boston, for the purpose of raising funds to celebrate the home coming of the 101st Infantry. The affair will be held New Year's Eve and a committee with Mrs. Henry Brown as chairman.

Look out for Spanish Influenza.

Get a shopping card—WHENEVER you come to Filene's—either to buy or to look—we suggest that you begin by asking for a shopping card. These may be obtained from any saleswoman, any clerk, any floor manager, or from the Personal Service Bureau. They may be used for one purchase or several. Shopping cards are a great time-saver because they do away entirely with the necessity for giving your name and address every time you make a purchase. When you have finished your shopping turn in your shopping card.

It furnishes a complete record of your purchases to the shipping room so that nothing can be overlooked. It insures that your packages will all be delivered together for the same charge.

A flat rate of 10c is charged for delivery of packages of any size within a radius of 12 miles. Outside of 12 miles, delivery will be charged for according to actual cost.

In this store today there are values which would not be possible under the old policy of free delivery.

Interest Increases in Soldiers' Friend

Readers of the Boston AMERICAN are following with daily growing interest the answers of the Soldiers' Friend to queries of every nature, relative to men in the service and their affairs.

The AMERICAN will publish a million of copies of the Soldiers' Friend and will send them to soldiers and sailors, their families and their sweethearts. Questions concerning service men and their affairs will be answered promptly. Advice on claims, discharges, etc., will be given, as will information concerning hotels and places of entertainment. Friends desiring to entertain soldiers or sailors in hotels, restaurants or private homes may receive them through the Boston AMERICAN, stating the number of guests desired.

Address all communications to the Soldiers' Friend, Boston AMERICAN, No. 10 Summer street, Boston.

MRS. M. D. P.—There is no 54th Artillery Regiment in the 26th Division. Your statements indicate that the unit in which your husband is enrolled is Heavy Artillery, which is not attached to divisions. It is probable, or at least very possible, that he will be ordered prior to the actual signing of the peace treaty.

MRS. C. W. T. HOSKIN—It is impossible to say when he will return but it is not unlikely that unassigned heavy artillery units will be among the forces earlier to return.

FRYER FRIEND—The telegram from the War Department was probably correct, otherwise you would have heard from him by mail. If you were to place your name and address on the envelope, a letter to him would probably be returned, be returned to you.

W. W. WETHEART—The 525th Signal Battalion is in the 92d Division.

CHARLES WALDO—It is not a divisional unit.

MRS. K. SHERMAN—The 254 Infantry is in the 4th Division, in the 1st Brigade of Infantry.

BOSTON AMERICAN HEADLINE—Installation at Camp Devens is expected to proceed so rapidly that special applications seem scarcely worth while.

L. R.—Communication by mail with members of Naval Forces on the other side is not entirely irregular. Difficulties of transportation and the frequent movements of sailors are among the explanations offered by the postal authorities. It is quite probable that you may see your correspondent before he leaves. Overland Naval Forces are, however, under the control of Vice-Admiral Sims, who will probably regulate the release of reserves in favor of those who are while in ships to which they are attached.

The government may hold them during a brief period.

THE road to Paris was wide, wide open. The Prussian Guard moved forward. Two days march, and the city would be in their murderous hands.

Only a handful of Americans—rushed over in motor lorries—stood between the Hun and his most coveted prize.

If those Americans—boys you used to crowd and jostle on your own streets—had given an inch the Kaiser would be in Paris now instead of Holland

BUT, instead of going backward with the others, the Americans went forward! Instead of delaying that advance of the Prussian Guard, they halted it forever.

On that day Germany was Defeated; the Retreat began; Peace came into sight

Over in the Hospital, a few weeks ago, lay a wounded Marine—Orley M. Dunton—one of the boys who was there. His story of what happened is in December Hearst's. He calls it "MUSSING UP THE PRUSSIAN GUARDS."

COPY OF TOMBSTONE

New York, Dec. 2.—The Federal court here is believed to have settled the first case on record of a charge of plagiarizing a tombstone. Mrs. Minnie K. Young, widow of W. H. Young, wealthy realty broker, sued Mrs. Alice M. Long, widow of Samuel Long, millionaire motion picture producer, accusing Mrs. Long of copying the tombstone which Mrs. Young had erected in memory of her own husband. Counsel for Mrs. Long argued that the copyright law had not been strictly complied with by the plaintiff. Judge Mayer agreed and dismissed the case.
